

It was announced this week that after 18 years, the Xbox 360 Online store will be closing. Does this officially make the Xbox 360 consoles a brick now? Not at all really, as it turns out. We talk about what Microsoft is closing access to, but also the surprising amount of ways content will still be available as we kick off tonight's show. We also check in with our co-hosts, as Jamie brings back a wrapup from California Extreme, and LOKI announces his team was selected to participate in the Minecraft Championship Rising competition coming up this weekend! What an exciting week for all of us here at the longest running video game podcast, Orange Lounge Radio!
