The earlier rumors about Xbox game streaming are confirmed. What does this say about the potential future of games as more and more internet technology becomes available? Could streaming be the answer for other systems that aren't quite as powerful yet? We get into a discussion involving this, net neutrality's impact, and more! Then we get into the news of the week which includes more companies stances on Cross Play. Although it sounds like some rumored to have it games coming out soon may not actually have it, it's something at least one third party is hopeful for for the future!

Also in the news:

* Borderlands 2 VR

* PS4 consoles being harmed via messaging?

* Generation 4 coming to Pokemon Go

* Dragon Quest popularity on the 3DS
