

Fallout 76 continues to get negative feedback from folks on the internet this week, and this time a lot of the focus has to do with a bag promised in the collectors edition which changed materials from canvas to nylon. This didn't stop social media influencers from getting a canvas version of the bag though. We dig into this icky predicament and wonder what Bethesda can do to make this right. Then we get into the gaming news of the week which includes Nintendo making a big change on a controversial broadcasting and media sharing policy of theirs.

Also in the news:

* Playstation Classic based on PAL games

* Game Awards rumors

* Super Smash Bros Ultimate leaks early

* Source code for classic Leisure Suit Larry games being auctioned off
