A lawsuit filed by the state of California against Activision-Blizzard has sent shockwaves thru the industry. Yet here we are again with yet another story about a video game company treating marginalized people terribly. When will this end? When will this industry grow up? When will the leaders responsible for enabling this work culture face repercussions for what has unfolded on their watch? We try our best to find some answers, as well as talk about what we hope our government will do to hold this industry accountable for it's actions. We get into gaming news as well after that.
